JOSEPH PERUMTHOTTAM
METROPOLITAN ARCHBISHOP OF CHANGANACHERRY

MESSAGE FROM PATRON

As time goes by, the adverse conditions that man has to face are also changing. There may also appear someone to lift up the people from the misery of crises such as climate change, crop failure, epidemics, economic collapse and unemployment. Changanacherry Social Service Society since more than five decades, as helping hand to the people in their various crises that befell our state in the last and previous years. CHASS has been at the forefront recently combating the corona virus, one of the world's biggest pandemics. CHASS played a pivotal role in reviving Kuttanad by devising housing, self-employment and rehabilitation projects for the flood-hit people of Kuttanad. CHASS is the first priority for the Central and State Governments to implement their important projects, and which indeed is a recognition CHASS gets at the governmental level.

I am so happy to see that a well studied annual report is prepared and I hope that this report will be a 'text book' for the next generation to recognize how CHASS has survived and how it has dealt with the crises that have plagued the people for a long time.

I appreciate all the efforts of CHASS and gratefully remember the entire team for the wonderful and timely interventions made in the society. I wish you all the best in your future endeavours.

President's Words

Changanacherry Social Service Society is publishing yet another year's Annual Report for the reference of all those who are associating with it. The multi faceted interventions undertaken by CHASS for the integral development of the poor and marginalized communities in the operational area of the Archdiocese of Changanacherry is praiseworthy and is legitimized as one of the leading NGOs in Kerala , particularly in Central Travancore. All these interventions/ activities are realized for the vision and commitment of the directors and staff of the organization.

I have great admiration for the social work activities done through Changanacherry Social Service Society and thank all the forerunners and committed staff who upkeeps the Goodwill of the organization. I appreciate the Director and team for the effective handling of the emergencies in the recent years. They could positively respond to the Kerala flood 2018, Flood and Landslide 2019 and now the COVID -19 pandemic. I am writing this message in the midst of COVID-19 pandemic. I hope and pray that we could overcome this situation at the earliest. I take this opportunity to express my solidarity with all of you and pray for your safety.

Fr. Joseph Vaniapurackal
President

From the desk of EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR...

CHASS is blessed to present the report of 2019-20 social interventions for empowering the society. The number and diversity of the activities of the organization is increasing year after year in line with the needs of the target groups and target areas. The geographical significance of CHASS' operational area, as it caters to the Kuttanad region of the state of Kerala, is undoubtedly an opportunity for dedicated involvement. Staying connected with and for the community, online or offline, has been the nature of CHASS' staff and this is the reason behind its goodwill and success in the society. Accordingly we were able to contribute significantly to the food security in the state down the years through the agricultural interventions, environmental protection, water, sanitation and hygiene programs. Human resource development is one of the major thrust areas always and we have been backed with a network of experts from the government and non-government organizations. Even in the face of unprecedented epidemics like the COVID-19, we are strengthened by our membership in the Social Apostolate of the Catholic Church. This has helped us to be in the forefront of any emergency situation requiring social intervention.

And this year we proceed with "Harithasamrudhi" to our portfolio of activities. However, the current COVID-19 pandemic has certainly presented a threatening situation to the social and economic state-of-affairs for the whole of mankind, many of which remain yet to be ascertained. And we are only gearing up to face the consequences and multiplier effects of this manmade disaster.

Looking ahead I assume that CHASS will have to invest greater efforts for combating Climate Change and bringing social harmony. Environment degradation is the danger of the hour and Mother Nature seems to be warning us through disasters of a greater catastrophe if left unattended, and to this end people have to radically amend their ways and attitudes and adopt an eco-friendly lifestyle.

Fr. Joseph Kalarickal
Executive Director

SUSTAINABLE AGRICULTURE

The climatic changes in the region also changed agricultural patterns with perennial cash crops over weighed not only created heavy setbacks to the region's traditional self reliance in food, but also distorted the natural resource base owing to poor soil and bio-mass management systems and for the indiscriminate and unregulated application of chemicals to catalyze the soil for fast results. The disappearance of the water holding areas along the valleys and the adjoining marshy lands being divested of the natural prowess has paved way to water scarcity especially in summer for a population entirely depending on surface natural sources both for drinking and watering the plants during dry season. This would imply that strategic revival of wet and marshy land farming for food crops following scientific soil and water management methods becomes imperative not only for food security but also to keep intact the natural sources of water as the entire region, territory and the continent are predicted to be getting in to a major crisis. Agriculture and allied activities plays a major role in the varied programs of CHASS. The department is addressing the following issues.

- Unorganized and disoriented farming community
- Food scarcity and increasing dependency on market
- Increasing unemployment
- Non remunerative prices for cash crops and marketable surplus of commodities
- Bio diversity imbalances
- Soil erosion and degradation
- Youth despondency to agriculture

The consecutive floods during 2018 and 2019 totally dislocated the habitation, farming and the living situation of the water logged Kuttanad Region. Since a major chunk of the Archdiocesan population settled in this marshy delta, the Archdiocese of Changanacherry declared a 5 year "Kuttanad Re-building Package with an expected financial outlay of hundred crores in collaboration with the entire parishes of the Archdiocese, well-wishers and benevolent funding agencies and well-wishers. House construction, House repairing, Farming assistance, Income Generation programs, Water and Sanitation programs, Education assistance, Medical support, etc., are the major projects undertaken by this package. Changanacherry Social Service Society the official organ of the Archdiocese for Social Ministry coordinated the activities on behalf of the Archdiocese. Following are the major activities undertaken by the Society during the report period.

A. REHABILITATION HOUSING

A safe dwelling place is a dream of every human being. Moreover it is one of the basic needs of every human being viz. food, clothing and shelter. In this sense it is the right of every individual to live in a safe secure house together with his kith and kin. This basic right is not often fulfilled in the case of a good number of unfortunate families. A large number of poor and marginalized are still far from realizing this ardent desire. Life situation of the people living in Kuttanad region of Alappuzha district, one of the major areas of the Archdiocese, is worth mentioning here in connection with shelter issues. Kuttanad being flood prone area, flood related problems are a perennial issue. The most devastating floods occurred during 2018 and 2019 totally disrupted the habitation in Kuttanad. Thousands of families lost their dwelling house in the flood either totally collapsed or with major damages. Changanacherry Social Service Society pursues rather an enabling process with regard to the basic human infrastructure development by creating linkages with, different donor agencies, Government housing schemes and that of financial institutions. This year the Society could assist 396 families from Kuttanad region to construct dwelling houses under the following Housing schemes.
